This is a live-in position situated in the heart of Belgravia, one of the most exclusive residential areas in London. Known for its elegant white stucco townhouses, garden squares, and high-end amenities, Belgravia offers an exceptional environment for private household professionals. With excellent public transport connections nearby, the property is well located for commuting on days off. The successful candidate will be provided with private accommodation in the form of a comfortable bedroom within the household. All meals are included, and there are no food-related expenses for the employee.

Working as a housekeeper/maid in a formal London residence requires an excellent eye for detail and the ability to care for luxury furnishings and garments. Duties will include general housekeeping, wardrobe management, and assisting the chef during service when the principals entertain guests. Experience working with delicate fabrics and designer clothing is essential, and the ability to maintain a structured cleaning schedule when the principals are both in and out of residence will be highly valued.
